EWOCOTTON MILLS SHOW UNEXPECTED 1922 PROFITS

Tael And Half Dividend On "Preference" Stock

8 P.C. ON COMMON

Company's Return Much Less Than Previous Year

BY DAVID ARABIE

(Financial Editor)

The prophets have been confounded, for the Ewo Cotton Mills, Limited, whose agents are Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Company, will declare a dividend of a tael-and-a-half per share to the "ordinary" shareholders and an eight percent to the "preference."

The news was received yesterday in the Stock Exchange and investment circles with a degree of pleasant surprise, for it was anticipated that the very utmost the Company could give this year would be a tael per share, although many viewed the prospect of such a distribution as extremely remote, tael-and-a-half being considered more within the bounds of sound management.

Yesterday afternoon the Consulting Committee of the Company decided to recommend the payment out of the year's profit of Tls. 7,120,000, a dividend at the rate of 8 percent on the 9,000 preference shares, which will absorb Tls. 2,000, and a dividend on 900,000 ordinary shares which will absorb Tls. 1,350,000.

Of the balance, depreciation on machinery and plant is responsible for Tls. 175,000 and depreciation on buildings, Tls. 25,000. Tls. 1,725,833 for writing off furniture, Tls. 160,244 for the writing off of water supply and Tls. 300 for motor car. The amount that will be carried forward is Tls. 10,856,49, after adding Tls. 100,000 to the Chinese superannuation fund, Tls. 26,961,46 to the special repairs and renewals fund, and the payment of Tls. 37,000 as bonus to the staff at the mills.

PROFIT 86 PERCENT LESS

In other words, the Company's profits are 86 percent less than the previous year. For in 1921 the Mills made a profit of Tls. 3,189, 611, and carried forward a smaller sum, namely, Tls. 8,522,32.

In considering the accounts of last year's working of the Ewo Mills, it must be remembered that the profit of Tls. 1,712,000 there included, as far as we have been able to ascertain, the profit on the sale of last year of 100,000 extra shares at a premium of Tls. 5 per share. But for this the year's working would have shown a smaller profit, in other words, a difference of five lakhs of taels.

Last year the Company distributed a dividend of three taels per share, and the accounts published were for the first time those of the combined institutions, the Ewo Mills, the Kung Yik Mills and the Yangtzeop, all three being now amalgamated in the Ewo Mills, Ltd.

DUE TO DEPRESSION

The considerable falling off in the profits of the two Ewo Mills for the last year is principally the result of the depression in the yarn market that has existed for the large part of last year, and it is certainly a great tribute to the management that it gave a distribution of Tls. 150 per share will be made. The announcement has braced the price of the stock, for Ewo's were marketed yesterday at Tls. 15 and Tls. 15.25 for March delivery, a rise within the past few days of nearly two taels per share. During the bad times in the yarn trade last year they dropped to Tls. 11. That the company has come out so well in a year that was in many respects critical one shows that the mills must have laid in stocks of cotton at cheap prices, which enabled them to feel the pinch much less than others. The Company plays an important part in the industrial life of the Settlement.

The Tls. 500,000 that has accrued to the Company through the sale of 100,000 shares at a premium of Tls. 5 will be taken to general Reserve. When the balance sheet and the profit and loss account of the Ewo Mills, Ltd., is issued in the course of the next few days there will be more light thrown on the year's working than a brief statement from the company, issued yesterday after the meeting in the afternoon of the Consulting Committee.

When the news of the distribution reaches Hongkong there will

Smiles from the Mixed Court

BY J. L. BUTTS

Anyone desiring a testimonial in support of the theory that the shoemaker should adhere strictly to his last can obtain same by application to either Kweh Tuh-kwen or Kau Soong-ling, members of the cobbling profession, who may be reached during the ensuing 90 days at 59 Ward Road. The sentiment also will be smilingly endorsed by Zung Ching-yue, who continues to cobbler at 484 Pingliang Road while his fellow craftsmen aforementioned infest the Municipal Bastille.

Until recently Zung and Kweh built footwear and resided together in utter amity at the Pingliang Road address; customers were satisfactorily frequent and life went along in smooth and rosy fashion. Then, one morning Zung woke up to find that his shoemaker's stand, fifty-eight pairs of newly completed shoes, four cooking pans and four sides of imported leather had been embezzled from the establishment. Zung's vocal reaction to the discovery brought Kweh bounding to his aid.

In recounting the occurrence to the Court yesterday, Zung said he now recollected that there was nothing obviously absent from among Kweh's share of the booty. But at the time Kweh set up a clamor which eclipsed Zung's, and Zung being the leaseholder, demanded that the latter make immediate and adequate recompense for sundry articles and habilliments declared to be missing. The two then went to the Yangtzeop police station and reported the burglary. Among those present in the charge room when the report was made was Detective Ming Tuh.

An hour or so later, as Det. Ming was permeating the Yangtzeop district, there came to him the report that two men were engaged in argument over the decision of some pawntickets in a nearby teashop. Sauntering in to quell the disturbance, the detective immediately recognized one of the parties as Kweh. The other proved to be Kau, and the pawntickets proved to be certificates of deposit for the shoes, leather and kitchenware extracted from Zung's menage. Thus confronted, Kweh sagged lamentably from his former indignant pose.

"Yes," said he, "I arranged to leave the back door unlocked so Kau could loot the place."

SITUATION DOUBTFUL

C.P.C. 527 would be a valuable recruit for any U. S. Prohibition Enforcement squad. By merely glancing at the outlines of Zung Ah-kyung, who was hovering flirtatiously about a pawnshop in Ward Road, the C.P.C. detected that Zung was bootlegging a couple of handsome zinc candlesticks. Zung thought he had the things perfectly concealed in his trousers.

The captive protested vigorously yesterday in court that he had found the taper holders in a garbage box, but the Court took cognizance of the fact that Zung had been impounded ten times previously for larceny and gave him a week's time to try and find an owner for the brace.

Ex-Kaiser's Wife Fed Up With Doorn

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Doorn, Jan. 29.—The former German kaiser seemed to be in low spirits during his birthday celebration. In this connection it is said that the former kaiser's bride recently informed friends that she was "terribly bored" at Doorn. She made no effort to conceal the fact that she would like to return to Germany.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED IN RUHR; MINERS QUITTING PITS

French Continue To Make Arrests For Rioting

MORE SOLDIERS

Fresh Contingents Continue To Pour In

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Dusseldorf, Jan. 29.—What practically amounts to martial law has been declared in the occupied area. All cafes, theaters, and cabarets were ordered closed at ten o'clock tonight. The French continue to make arrests in connection with Thursday's rioting, about twenty being imprisoned this evening. Fresh contingents of French troops continue to arrive in the Ruhr district. The miners are gradually leaving the pits, threatening a complete cessation of activity below ground.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 28.—The New York World recognizes that France has never sent colored troops into the Ruhr but only white troops and declares false the reports to that effect published in America from German sources.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 28.—The allegation, carried by the German Wireless and published from that source in China, that the British Attorney-General had declared in the House of Commons that, legally speaking, the Versailles Treaty had been broken by the French action in seizing the Ruhr mines and forests, is absolutely untrue. The Attorney-General made no such statement. The House of Commons is not sitting.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 28.—The diplomatic correspondent of the Sunday Times learns that Mr. Bonar Law has been rendered very uneasy by the developments and the French actions of the past week, which have gone beyond anything proposed or ever hinted at during the conversations in Paris.

Commenting on the matter in the course of an editorial article, the Sunday Times urges Great Britain not to lose the chance of rescuing France and Germany from the impossible position into which they have maneuvered themselves.

The Observer writes that the facts exceed the worst forecast and expresses the opinion that the position is in some ways analogous to that in 1914. The journal declares that, failing a favorable turn of events, a decisive departure from the present British policy will be required, involving a thorough recasting of the whole European policy.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 27.—Reuter learns that the British Cabinet meeting yesterday decided not to change its attitude of aloofness with regard to the French and Belgian operations in the Ruhr.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 27.—By yesterday's decision of the Reparations Commission Germany is called on to pay the 1921 total of $6,500,000,000 which the French themselves have recognized as impossible. This forms the theme of the editorial articles in the British press today and is regarded as indicating that obtaining reparations is not France's chief aim.

The Daily Chronicle warns the British Government to abandon its attitude of complaisance and not to permit events in the Ruhr to develop of their own sweet will. The Times says that, as the French are executing measures without our consent, the time has come to ask France her real aims. The journal says that the systematic preparations for a prolonged occupation of the Ruhr threaten a menace to the peace of Europe and expresses the opinion that Britain should remain as long as possible in the Ruhr.

PARISIEN BAND PROVIDES FINE PROGRAM FOR LISTENERS IN

Last Two Concerts Successful In Every Way

MAXIM'S TONIGHT

Popular Orchestra To Be Heard, With Soloists

Tonight's Radio Program

Tonight will be "Maxim's Night" on the radio when every number—with the exception of Mr. Frank Shaw's famous song "Cowbells,"—will be played by Morris' Musical Masters, led by Jack Morris.

Mr. Shaw, the side-splitting vocal comedian who is the star of the Golden Gate Quartette at the New Carlton, has sprung into fame overnight as a result of the laugh-provoking appeal of "Cowbells." He will sing it tonight on the radio, "Nuf sed!"

Maxim's orchestra will play the following program, interspersed with news bulletins broadcasted by THE CHINA PRESS.

8 p.m.—Isle of Zardla by Maxim's Orchestra.

8:10—Early in the Mornin' Blues by Maxim's Orchestra.

8:20—I Wish I Knew, Cornet solo by Mr. George Muggie, with accompaniment by the orchestra.

8:30—"Cowbells," vocal solo by Mr. Frank Shaw, the "hit" at the New Carlton.

8:40—"When The Leaves Come Tumbling Down" by Morris' Musical Masters, the Maxim music-makers.

8:40—Piano Solo by Jack Morris.

8:50—Phonograph selections and news bulletins.

Two completely successful radio programs were broadcasted by THE CHINA PRESS and the Radio Corporation of China from the roof of the Dollar building on Canton Road on Sunday night and last night.

On Sunday night, as a practical demonstration of the untold possibilities of the radio in missionary work in China a specially arranged sacred program was broadcasted. The Very Rev. C. J. F. Symons, Dean of Holy Trinity Cathedral, preached the first sermon ever broadcasted in China, and Mr. Frank Austin, Mr. C. F. Butt and Mr. R. C. Young of the Cathedral choir sang and played the first sacred songs ever given several thousand eager listeners through the medium of the latest wonder to be added to the "wonders of the world."

Last night a snappy jazz program was given by the Hotel Parisien orchestra, through the courtesy of Mr. R. A. Petty, manager of the Parisien. The orchestra played two of the dance numbers that have made them so popular with Shanghai dance-lovers, and individual members of the musical crew gave solo numbers.

PLAINLY HEARD

Both Sunday night's and last night's concerts were heard plainly and distinctly on approximately 1,000 amateur sets in Shanghai as well as by the wireless stations in the vicinity of Shanghai and several vessels within range down the river or off the coast.

SHAW AND MAXIMS

Tonight Frank Shaw, the funny-face yodeler with the magnetic smile will divide honors with Jack Morris' Maxim Cafe orchestra in dispensing good cheer through the ether.

Mr. Shaw will sing "Cowbells," which should be enough to have every radio receiving set in Shanghai tuned in awaiting the song.

The Maxim's orchestra will play a selection of their latest jazz music and unless predictions are all in vain there will be many toes nervous to get into action when the jazz music strikes up. In addition to several selections by the orchestra Mr. Morris, himself, ardent tickler of the piano keys, will play a piano solo, and other members of the jazz band will

(China Press Service)

Canton, Jan. 28.—It is reported that General Wei Pang-ping, Commander-in-chief of the Cantonese troops, who was reported to have been assassinated, was put under arrest and fired upon by the Kwangsi soldiers at a Council of War summoned by General Shen Hung-ying and Liu Chin-hwan, leaders of the Ching Hsueh Hui Party (the Kwangsi party) on Friday, is being detained at the Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station, being the headquarters of General Liu's troops.

Warlike preparations are being hurried by the 1st and 3rd Kwangtung Divisions under General Wei which are stationed at Honam. The Kwangsi and Yunnan troops which are short of arms and munitions are attempting to disarm the Cantonese troops on the Southern side of the Pearl River, but the latter are determined to fight to the last. Offensive operations against the Kwangsi and Yunnan troops will be deferred, pending the arrival of General Hsu Chung-chih's army from the eastern front. Immediately, General Wei was put under arrest. The major and General Liu Ta-cheng then retired to report the result of the meeting to General Yang and General Shen, but they were both killed at the entrance to the headquarters by General Wei's bodyguards, who learned of their chief being entrapped.

Ages Liquor 40 Years In 40 Minutes

Prof. Charles Henry

PROFESSOR Charles Henry, of Sorbonne University, in France, is shown with the apparatus he has perfected by which he ages liquors in a few minutes. He uses Rumkorf's apparatus by attaching wires to the faucets at both ends of the keg. Then he shoots 120,000 volts through the keg. This removes all impurities and gives it the flavor of 40-year-old liquor.

KANSANS MEET, ELECT OFFICERS FOR NEW YEAR

Mr. Robert Whitcomb, of the International Banking Corporation, was elected president of the Kansans Club at the annual reunion of that organization held last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Boynton, 89 Route Pichon. Miss Gertrude N. Oldroyd was elected secretary.

About 35 former Kansans met for the informal affair and enjoyed a delightful evening. Supper was served and there were Kansans "stunts" in the entertainment way, songs and toasts. The feature of the evening was a country school contest, during which the guests engaged in an old fashioned spelling bee and were queried on points in Kansan history.

The Kansans Club boasts about 50 members. The oldest China resident is Mary E. Cogdal, who has been in this country more than 32 years. Next is Emma Gilver, who has been in China 27 years, while Mrs. R. C. Beebe has been a resident for 25 years.

COUNTERFEITERS GET JAIL TERMS AT MIXED COURT

Two counterfeiters of silver coins were sentenced by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Kwan of the Mixed Court yesterday. One of them was arrested at 39 Kweichow Road, where a number of spurious 20-cent pieces and equipment for their making were found. He was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment and subsequent expulsion from the settlement.

Following the arrest of the first man, Detective Inspector Cruickshank told the Court, the prisoner gave information to the police which led to a raid at 1240 Taitung Road, where a larger plant was discovered. Besides electric batteries, metal moulds, etc., the raiding party found seven spurious dollars, 165 20-cent pieces and some 10-cent pieces. The defendant in each case denied being the principal and laid blame for the counterfeiting on a man named Ah Ching. The sentence in the second case was 18 months' imprisonment and expulsion.

American Angle On Slevin Case

The New York Times on Dec. 24 published the following story which is of interest in Shanghai in connection with the charges of importing airplanes into China now being heard against Mr. James Slevin in the United States Court for China.

"A statement was issued yesterday in behalf of the Curtiss Airplane Company relative to the reported arrest of James Slevin in China, charged with attempting to ship into China six Curtiss airplanes, in violation of President Harding's proclamation of March 4.

"The statement follows: 'In a dispatch from Hankow, China, copyrighted by the Chicago Tribune and published in the New York Times today, it was stated that James Slevin of New York, representing the Curtiss Airplane Company, had been held for trial in the United States Court at Shanghai, charged with attempting to ship into China six Curtiss airplanes, in violation of President Harding's proclamation of March 4.

"At the Curtiss factory at Garden City today it was said: (1) James Slevin is not in the employ of this company; (2) that the airplanes had been shipped, under authority of a permit from the State Department, to Fuchow; (3) that at Shanghai, the airplanes must have been diverted to Hankow.

"It was suggested at the Curtiss plant that the man mentioned in the cable dispatch was the same James Slevin who several years ago attained considerable publicity by taking a number of exclusive photographs of Pope Benedict in the Vatican gardens."

The First Sermon By Radio

The following sermon preached by the Very Rev. C. J. F. Symonds, Dean of Holy Trinity Cathedral, on Sunday evening, was the first sermon ever to be broadcasted in China by radio. Dean Symonds' congregation consisted of a dozen listeners at the broadcasting station on the roof of the Dollar building and over six hundred sets in Shanghai as well as several large receiving stations and several ships at sea.

BY DEAN SYMONDS

With Septuagesima Sunday commenced the second section of the Church's year. This Sunday and the two that follow it are, as it were, a transition between the festival commemoration of Christmastide and the penitential observance of Lent. All of which are a fitting preparation for Easter-tide.

But Septuagesima is the great festival of the Creation and we are called to bow our heads in wonder and awe in consideration of the wonders of the world in which we live.

Quite naturally and rightly we are conducted to the consideration of this great object by our Church along two main lines. The beginning of things as far back as the mind can trace them in the earliest words of our Bibles. In the beginning then through some old time description of natural science in the Psalms.

All over Christendom today this message has been given and has called for the perhaps too easy criticism of the old account—the absurdity of the six day creation.

It is not my purpose to seek to defend what seems to be the scientific assertion of these early accounts. When those words were recorded science, as we know it today, was in its infancy. The astronomer and the geologist has tabulated his findings and we are not at the end, even measurably, yet.

These findings have had the effect of making fresh discoveries and theories; it may be, deducted therefrom making the world only more wonderful and more mysterious than it was to the ancients. And to the Believer these researches have added fresh force to the declaration of the Psalmist: "O Lord, how wonderful are thy works in wisdom. Hast thou made them all. The world is full of riches."

So we go back to the early account and find therein the gem in this old and faded setting—"The fact of God." In simple yet majestic language, "In the beginning," not at some calculated period—for it was before time as we can now read was—"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." And we have no complaint if the scientists will allow us this gem to their more elaborate and embellished setting.

There, surely, is the inspiration—a recognition by man in those early days—of the stupendous fact of the Creation—his creation—of the Maker and the made—and reverently we bow our heads and say "I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth."

Every fresh research that is known with success, every explanation of regions hitherto inaccessible, reveals fresh cause for astonishment and adoration. If he made so skillfully wrought, so exquisitely ordained, what of he Maker? This planet of ours, pinning on its orbit, is an obscure corner of space among the unnumbered thousands of worlds round it—so disproportionate to what is known of the universe, must have more than surface to beck human arrogance at the very outset.

And yet on the other hand man's God's greatest wonder. As an emphasis to the progressive series each period in turn is viewed by the Divine First Cause "and God saw that it was good." Of man, rested in his image, the record concludes "behold it was very good."

If the Psalmist gazing into the heavens is overwhelmed with the immensity and splendor revealed to his unaided view and is "wondered to express the wonder of his recognition in the words: 'When I consider Thy Heavens, the work of Thy fingers, to move he stars which Thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou shouldst be mindful of him and the Son of man that Thou visitest him.'"

How much more we who live in an age when astronomers with their giant telescopes have revealed information of distances and make the contemplation of which turns our heads dizzy? Yet Thy God is not unknowable. We seek, nay we may find, Him. And Saint Paul would tell us that this seeking and finding may be called the Object of Creation. When standing on Mars hill in Athens he is confronted with philosophers who have with scrupulous care crammed every niche in their Pantheon with objects of worship. And lest any should be forgotten one was dedicated to 'the unknown God.'

Saint Paul fills that niche with God Himself, giving it as the purpose of God that men should seek the Lord and find Him.

G $9,300,000,000
Life Insurance

MORE than nine thousand millions of dollars of life insurance was taken out by the American people during 1922. These figures are an increase over 1921 of almost 7 per cent and bring the total life insurance of "legal reserve" companies in the United States well beyond fifty billion gold dollars. This year will probably see an even larger increase.

THESE are stupendous amounts. They form one of the chief explanations of the great advances in education and of the high degree of individual and national prosperity in America. The fact that 85% of all estates in that country are from life insurance speaks for itself.

WILL you leave an estate sufficient to care for your family as long as they live?

his every word was heard clearly and distinctly miles away.

In the midst of the Dean's sermon Mrs. Logan at 105 Chapoo Road called and reported that she was hearing everything clearly and distinctly.

Then Major Hilton Johnson called from his home on Route Doumer to report that they were enjoying church services in their own home.

"It's coming through as clear as you could possibly want it," Major Johnson declared.

A NEW STUNT

And then Mr. S. Webb of the Shanghai Mutual Telephone Company called by telephone.

"We're hearing Dean Symons' sermon even more distinctly than I'm hearing your voice," Mr. Webb said. "Just listen in a moment and I'll let you hear it back."

THE RADIO CHURCH

The sacred program on Sunday night was a revelation, not only to the hundreds who 'listened in' all over Shanghai, but to the small congregation who gathered in the specially equipped apartment on the roof of the Dollar building from where the programs are broadcasted nightly.

The program started a little late as Prof. C. H. Robertson and Dr. John Y. Lee of the Y.M.C.A., who kindly gave their valuable services in assuring a perfect working of the broadcasting apparatus, made a few necessary tests.

Then the switch was thrown in and Mr. Frank Austin, soloist at the Cathedral, stepped toward the transmitting horn and began singing his first sacred solo, "Lord God of Abraham," accompanied by Mr. R. C. Young, the Cathedral organist, on the piano.

Clearly and distinctly Mr. Austin's voice was carried on magical little waves in the air into about 1,000 receiving sets scattered about the city—as sweetly and as inspiring as though the listeners were sitting in the Cathedral.

Following his first solo Mr. Austin sang "O God Have Mercy" (St. Paul). During both songs listeners in the broadcasting room heard Mr. Austin singing through the receiving sets in the different rooms of the radio apartment.

When Mr. Austin had finished an announcement was made requesting amateurs to call the broadcasting station by telephone and report on what success they were having and as Dean Symons began preaching his epochal sermon the telephone calls began coming in.

Dean Symons preached in his ordinary voice standing several feet from the transmitter and yet a practical demonstration of radio waves, alternating the receiving set so that the audience at the broadcasting station could listen to the various stations.

THANKS FOR SILENCE

THE CHINA PRESS and Mr. Osborn desire to express their sincerest thanks to the French wireless station and other wireless stations in this vicinity for remaining silent during the program so that there would be no interference.

Everything worked like a charm. Last night's concert was another complete and unqualified success.

It was 'Parisien Night' and the jazz-hounds from the Hotel Parisien gave the 'listeners in' a full hour of melody that was carried through the skies with remarkable clarity. A number of amateurs called during and immediately after the concert to congratulate THE CHINA PRESS and Mr. Osborn on the success of the demonstration, and Mr. Eddie Harmon, leader of the Parisien orchestra, on the music his melodious music makers manufactured.

The musical feast began with "The Bla Bla Blues," by the entire orchestra, followed by "Down The Trail To Home Sweet Home," a banjo solo by Mr. Roy Sharp. The third number given was a saxophone, banjo and piano trio, "Star of Love," by Messrs. Adamson, Sharp and Harmon, followed by a violin solo, "Sous le vent," by Mr. Alexandra, the orchestra's violinist.

WIRELESS KITTY

Mr. Eddie Harmon, leader of the orchestra, next played "Kitten On The Keys" as a piano solo, and then Mr. Roy Sharp, entertainer as well as musician, sang "Bow Wow Blues." The "appliance" with which Mr. Sharp's rollicking song skittered over the ether caused an encore, "Don't Bring Me Posies."

Following the last orchestral number, when Eddie Harmon's gang played "What'll You Do," a number of news bulletins were broadcasted by THE CHINA PRESS and several phonograph selections were played.

And everybody was tickled to death!

Mr. L. F. Filippetti of 186 Rue de Simon, one of the operators of the Koukaza wireless station (FZ Z) has built a receiving set from old electrical parts and uses a three step French amplifier. A French Army bugle soldered to the stand formerly used for a portable electric light, acts as the magna vox and THE CHINA PRESS programs are heard nightly.

Mr. Filippetti has experimented with various lengths of aerials since the radiophone programs have been broadcasted and yesterday expressed the opinion that a twelve-foot aerial is sufficient. He urges those who desire to hear THE CHINA PRESS concerts and news bulletins to use this length.

"A long aerial allows too much interference," he said. "With my twelve-foot aerial, I get THE CHINA PRESS programs without difficulty and hear very few other stations."

A CHINA PRESS man heard Dean Symons' sermon at Mr. Filippetti's home Sunday night and the preacher's words could be heard without difficulty in all parts of the house.

Before the wireless man had hit upon the idea of using the bugle as a magna vox, Mr. Filippetti had a head set. He "tuned in" the first night and as he was on early duty the next morning, went to bed, but with the head set on. He was kept awake, he says, by the Golden Gate quartet, and Earl Currens' Astor House Grill jazz band. His wife, who is also a keen radio fan, sat in another room with the receivers over her ears. The French army bugle solved the problem, however, and now the concerts and news bulletins can be heard in any part of the house.

Radio Set Can Be Attached To Electric Wires

(China Press Service)

London, Jan. 10.—Mr. William Dabillier, a pioneer in wireless telephony and inventor of several devices, which have helped the progress of the science, is at present in London on a visit from the United States.

He thinks that while broadcasting has developed so rapidly in America that it has got to some extent out of hand, the English attitude has been too conservative. Over a million American homes are equipped, he says, with radio instruments, and more than 270 broadcasting stations have been erected in the States. The wireless set has become as much a household article as the gramophone.

"Here," Mr. Dabillier said, "the Post Office tells you to take a licence and pay so much a year for listening in. This is right, because no industry can succeed unless it has an income; but I think that in a short time broadcasting will get beyond the control of any Government."

It must become a great civilising and educative influence, and the Carnegies of the next generation, instead of providing libraries and institutes, will endow big broadcasting stations, which will put the finest music and other valuable things at the disposal of millions.

Famous singers and great orchestras will give concerts which may be heard over vast areas. Election candidates will reach a whole electorate in a day, instead of a taking a month. Farmers will get daily reports on market prices and all the important news. By 1950, isolation should be a thing of the past."

Mr. Dabillier added that Canadians and Mexicans were already listening in to American broadcasted messages, and this kind of thing must make for international friendship and understanding.

When last Mr. Dabillier was in England considerable attention was being given to his micro-condenser which had superseded the Leyden jar and was then coming into general use.

He is now specially interested in a pocket device by means of which aerials can be dispensed with, and which, according to the claim made, will enable broadcasted concerts to be picked up through electric-light wires, entering a house.

"You do not need an antenna," he states, "if there is a simple way of connecting your receiving set with any electric-light socket. I got the idea when I was building a large outdoor aerial. I knew that any wire would receive wireless waves, but I had to contend with the lightning current which went through those wires."

After some experimenting with condensers I rigged up a little 'filter' which allowed the high frequency radio waves to pass through without interference. Further work perfected the device so that now it is only necessary to screw the filter into an electric light socket, attach the receiving set, and listen in.

If an antenna is already installed the device enables the listener to hear the broadcasting station to greater advantage. It also does away with switches and lightning arresters. It safeguards the set. There is no danger of shocks or short circuits. Each instrument is tested to withstand a breakdown voltage of three thousand."

Peking To Issue Short Term Bonds

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 29.—It is reported on good authority that the Minister and Vice-Minister of Finance contemplate the issue of short-term debentures amounting to $15,000,000 to tide over the New Year, to be secured by the Salt Surplus. The project is being referred to the Cabinet tomorrow.

The Financial Research Commission is discussing plans for the readjustment of foreign and domestic loans.

Mr. Lin En-yuan, on his assumption of the Ministry, has sent a telegram to the Provinces explaining the financial situation and pointing out that nearly all of the Government's revenues are mortgaged, while officials, soldiers and police are on the brink of starvation. The first measure, he says, should be readjustment of domestic loans and consolidation of funds but contribution must be forthcoming to meet ordinary expenditure.

Thursday's Games, at Y. M. C. A., 8:00 and 9:00, Blues vs S.A.S., Whites vs S.P.S.

Friday's Game, at Rowing Club, 5:30, Bearcats vs Stripes.

BY TOMMY GRAFTON

The Blues practically clinched the 1923 flag for the Foreign League championship last night, when they won a hard-fought game from the Bearcats on the Rowing Club floor. The Bearcats staged a great rally in the second half, but it was too late, and the final score read 25 to 18.

The Bearcats lost last night in the first ten minutes of play, Neprud and Harry Nash running wild and shooting many goals. When the score finally stood 16 to 4, Kenny Irle's men came back, and made a desperate attempt to even up.

Coulcher opened the game with a well-directed shot, and the Blues doubled the lead when Neprud smashed one in from the sidelines. Then Doc Gray and Elliott scored, but the Blues went on a rampage. Harry Nash was the individual star for the winners, caging three goals in the first half. After it seemed that the Blues were having a runaway Doc Gray and Elliott scored, and at half-time the Blues were on the long end of a 20 to 8 score.

The Bearcats fought heroically in the second period, when they scored 10 points as compared with five for the Rowing Clubbers. Doc Gray did most of the scoring, but he missed many easy chances from under the basket, and had been in the form he has recently displayed, the Bearcats would have had a good chance to win. Doc Swan played a whale of a game against Neprud, covering him in great style, and giving him a hard battle.

Roxburgh was the Bearcat hero, playing in splendid form, first at center, and later at guard. He was on Coulcher from the first whistle to the last, and the Blue man was forced to resort to wild shots, few of which entered the basket.

NASH IS GREAT

For the Blues Harry Nash played a phenomenal game at running guard, dropping the ball through the net for four baskets, all of which came at times when Irle's men were pressing hard. Nash has been playing a great game for his team of late, and he deserves a lot of credit.

In the second half there was much rough play by both teams, Coulcher and Elliott fouling on numerous occasions. Doc Gray took advantage of every chance from the foul line, caging four in succession, and Neprud was almost as good, missing only one.

While the Blues have not definitely attained the mathematical certainty, they are almost sure to win out, unless the Bearcats and the American School take the remaining games from them. The S.A.S. team has lost two straight to the leaders, but they will put up a hard scrap Thursday night, when a hard game is scheduled in the "Y" gym.

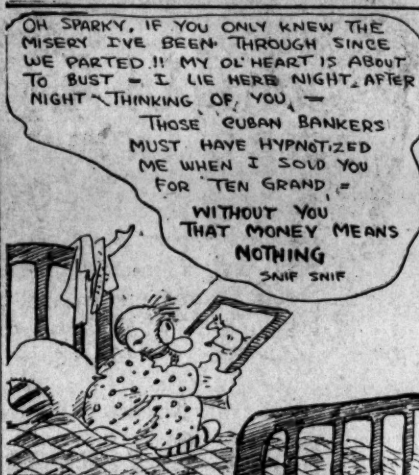

The Stripes moved up one game by claiming a forfeit from the Whites.

Last night's summary follows:

Blues 25	Bearcats 18
Coulcher 11	Gray
Goldman 11	Elliott
Neprud 11	Roxburgh
H. Nash 11	Hirsh
E. Nash 11	Irle
	Swan

Goals from floor: Coulcher 3, Goldman 2, Neprud 2, Nash 4, Gray 3, Elliott 3, Swan. Goals from fouls: Gray 4, Neprud 3, References: Squires, Baldwin.

Abbeyfield Also Good; Conqueror Dahlia May Surprise

TOEG HAS TWO

Fitz Roy And McKenzie Are Likely Ponies; Niccolite Fast

Glenfield, a new pony in the Morris stables, is being figured to win the Derby at the big Kiangwan China New Year meeting, with another Morris entrant, Abbeyfield, also being regarded as a hot favorite.

Glenfield and Conqueror Dahlia may be the surprise packages of the meeting if the two ponies continue to show the form in which they are now. Conqueror Dahlia has a good chance to cop the Champions if he does not go stale. Maresfield, Social Union, Nationalist and Shenkoland will be in without doubt, but Conqueror Dahlia also has a big crowd of supporters.

Sunday's gallops printed this morning give a line on what the ponies are doing. Crockam rode Lordship a mile and a half in 3:28 3/5 and the pony should be watched.

Fitz Roy and McKenzie are two good Derby ponies, both from the Toeg stable.

AMERICAN SCHOOL SOCCER ELEVENS BEATEN BY S. P. S.

The Shanghai Public School junior and midget elevens in the Inter-School League defeated the American School in games played Saturday morning at Hongkew Park.

The junior match was close throughout, with the Public-School boys pressing the attack, and Marriott, the S.A.S. goaler, playing brilliantly saving time after time. About ten minutes before the close of the contest, Turner of the Public scored the only goal, a high one which Marriott had no chance to stop. The midget score was Public School 3; American School 0.

The American School first soccer eleven defeated the Y.M.C.A. team in a one-sided game Saturday afternoon, on the Y.M.C.A. field. Capen, Brewster, and Estes tallied in the 3 to 0 victory.

CALCUTTA SWEEP NOW RESTRICTED TO MEMBERS ONLY

A new arrangement has been made this year by the Royal Calcutta Turf Club in connection with their Derby Sweep. A plan has been adopted which it is claimed will restrict participation in the sweep largely to members of the Club.

Under the new scheme no tickets will be used. Club members wishing to take part will be allotted a number. Non-members who may through a member of the Club secure participation will not therefore be given any tangible proof of their share.

The new method, it is expected, will tend to eliminate the widespread sale of tickets which made the sweep one of the greatest in the world and certainly the greatest in the British Empire.

FUKIENESE LEADER SEEKING ALLIANCE WITH SUN YAT-SEN

Wang Yung-chuan Abandons
Own Plan And Asks For Sun's Suggestions

(Special To The China Press)
Koochow, January 28.—A message of congratulation has been telegraphed to Dr. Sun Yat-sen by General Wang Yung-chuan, commander-in-chief of the Fukien Forces, upon the entry of the joint army of Yunnanese, Kwangsi and Kwangtung forces into Canton and the ousting of General Chen Ching-ming, which has caused the various factions to invite Dr. Sun to return to Canton.

General Wang stated in his message that it was necessary for Kwangtung and Fukien to co-operate with each other if genuine peace is to be secured and appeal to Dr. Sun for suggestion as to how this co-operation could be brought about.

At the same time, General Wang has accepted the terms of General Hsu Chung-chi, Dr. Sun's military representative in Fukien, under which the Constitutional Army would leave Fukien for Canton, including the retention of Mr. Ling Shen, as Civil Governor of the Province.

It will be remembered that General Wang had at first planned to support Admiral Sah Cheng-ping for the Governorship in order to secure the support of the navy and to check the activities of Admiral Liu Kwang-hsiang. General Wang has at that time communicated repeatedly with General Hsu Shu-feng to devise the necessary means of carrying out his plan, but the latter had merely replied to the effect that he should take the best course to safeguard his own interest and expressed disapproval of Wang's ever-changing policy. As a result, Wang has abandoned his former plans.

A great deal of interest is being shown in the course on "Practical Instruction in Problems in the Operation of Electrical Machinery in Factories" which the Chinese Y. M. C. A. is putting on in cooperation with St. John's University in the Science Hall of St. John's. The course will open next Thursday, February 1, at 7 p.m. Fifteen applicants have already signed up for the course and as enrollment is limited to twenty, it is anticipated that it will be necessary to turn away a number before the course actually opens.

Mr. E. C. Clark of the International General Electric Company is to have charge of all experiments and demonstrations and in addition to the apparatus available in the St. John's Science Hall, he will bring in various models and pieces of machinery in order that each point in the lesson may be made plain. The course will cover a period of from eight to ten weeks. Further particulars may be had by addressing the Industrial Department, Chinese Y. M. C. A., 120 Soochow Road, Shanghai.

Community Church Extends Call To California Minister

Rev. Clifford Merrill Drury of Berkeley, California, probably will take the post of pastor of the Community Church here succeeding Dr. Luther Freeman who is now in Pomona, Cal.

A committee in America has been co-operating with the Governing Board, and it is upon their recommendation that the present call has been extended. Rev. Milton T. Stauffer, now the Educational Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions, with headquarters in New York City, served as chairman of this Committee, and conducted its correspondence, in the search for suitable candidates. Other members of the Committee included Mr. Frederick E. Stier, formerly chairman of the Governing Board of the Church, and now private secretary to Judge Elbert H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation, and Captain Robert Dollar.

It was through Captain Dollar that the name of Mr. Drury was first called to the attention of the Church authorities. At the instance of the American Committee, Dr. Freeman, the first pastor of the Church, now minister at Pomona, made a trip to Berkeley and San Francisco to meet Rev. and Mrs. Drury and to make an investigation of his qualifications. Dr. Freeman's report was highly commendatory and convincing.

Mr. Drury is expected here in March. He is under thirty years of age, and was graduated from an Iowa College and of the San Francisco Theological Seminary. In his undergraduate days, Mr. Drury took an active and leading part in all college activities, debating, football, and Y. M. C. A. work particularly attracting him. He served eight months in the army, being assigned to research work in Phosgene in Yale Medical School, and later served for six months as an assistant Field Director of the Red Cross.

He is just completing his second year of service as Assistant Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Berkeley, California, associated with Dr. L. A. M. Afee, who is known to many Californians in Shanghai. During the latter's absence of about six months, Mr. Drury had

Committee Named To Improve Education For Chinese Women

Meeting Of Protest Against
Tsing Hua College Ends
With Organisation

A joint committee of the various local Chinese women's organizations was elected Sunday as a result of a protest meeting against the decision of the board of directors of Tsing Hua College, Peking, to stop sending girl students to American colleges. The committee however will not confine its activities to the Tsing Hua question alone, but will also devise means of improving conditions for the education of women in China.

The meeting was held on Sunday at the Kiangsu Educational Association and was presided over by Mrs. T. C. Chu, wife of the railway expert. Speeches were delivered by Miss Mary Suvoong, Mrs. H. C. Mei and Mrs. George Hsu Chien. It was pointed out that the decision of the board of directors constituted a reversal to the old Chinese theory that men were superior to women and gross infringement upon the rights of women.

Tsing Hua College, which is established with the funds of the returned portion of the American Boxer Indemnity, has been sending from 10 to 15 girls to American colleges up to this year. But a recent ruling of the administration called for the elimination of female scholarship on account of the lack of funds.

PHOSPHOR IS TO THE BRAIN WHAT ELECTRIC LIGHT IS TO A CITY.

WITHOUT PHOSPHOR YOU ARE IN THE DARK.

However it must be the right kind of Phosphor, because Phosphor as such is a strong poison. In the right kind of chemical combination it is harmless. Sodium Phosphate for example acts as a Salin Laxative but hardly any of its Phosphor contents is assimilated.

The case is different with

KOFA GLYCEROPHOSPHATES

They are assimilable, they are harmless—that is non-poisonous. An occasional overdose would do no harm.

Phosphor is also important for grown-up people because in any kind of brainwork a small

Letters To The Sports Editor

SCOTLAND VS. PORTUGAL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: As a keen fan of the football games, allow me to congratulate your sporting editor for his comments on the Portugal vs. Scotland game. None of your contemporaries did the same justice to the team that lost.

I left the field with the mournful impression that the Scottish team never did what it did last Saturday and hope it will never do it again. It was there to play and win and win anyhow. It won but the comments of the general public robbed the victory of all its glory.

I overheard a criticism passed by an outsider which was, "Portugal seems to be playing against twelve men." With this opinion the majority of those present—fair men—cannot but agree.

Yours,
Spectator.

Shanghai, Jan. 29.

SCOTLAND VS. PORTUGAL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

I shall be glad if you will convey through the medium of your columns, my hearty congratulations to the Scottish team for their splendid defeat of the Portuguese last Saturday in the first round of the International Cup.

The delightfully clean and clever way in which their defence dealt with the thrice as speedy Portuguese forwards was a treat. Their "Resourcefulness" was unique. I have been an enthusiastic follower of local football for the past many years and few are the games I have yet to see a team treat smaller and lighter opponents in as sportmanlike a manner as the Scottish dealt with the Portuguese. Who said Local Football has deteriorated?

To the Scottish eleven, I doff my hat. Thanking you, I am, Dear Sir, Yours faithfully,

"An Old Sportsman."

Shanghai, Jan. 29.

SCOTLAND VS. PORTUGAL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

As a spectator at last Saturday's local International Association football match between Scotland and Portugal, I wish to protest publicly against the exhibition put up by some members of the Scots team, and against the fact that of Shanghai's three morning papers, one only, THE CHINA PRESS, made any fair comment on what happened. I have not yet seen today's evening journals, but I expect they, like the other two, will gloss over incidents which are deserving of the fullest publicity.

While most members of the Scots team played a good, clean game, the whole of the efforts of the eleven were negated, from a spectator's viewpoint, by the almost consistently reprehensible tactics adopted by two Scots players particularly, and one, who had less opportunity, in a lesser degree.

One Scots player particularly—a half-back—indulged in methods of play for which he should have been ordered off the field before the game was twenty minutes old, and another, who I understand has been honored by being invited to proceed to Hongkong as a sportsman of Shanghai, was nearly as bad.

The Portuguese played a good, clean, clever and plucky game, and if they had got what they deserved, three, possibly four, penalties would have come their way for glaring breaches of the laws of fair play by Scots players in the penalty area. Scotland won by a narrow margin, but in my opinion, and I feel sure it is shared by hundreds of others, no right-minded person can conscientiously congratulate them on a win which has done nothing to enhance the local reputation of Scotsmen as good sportsmen, nor done anything to the best interests of Association football in Shanghai.

The only consolation, if consolation there be, is that the players I have in mind may not be considered typical of Scots footballers in Shanghai (even so far as the accent), and that although Scotland won the match, the moral victory belongs to the Portuguese, who are to be congratulated on the manner in which they played the game, and contended against conditions which to them must have appeared rather hopeless.

In conclusion, I can only hope that the Shanghai Football Association, if it is the live body it professes to be, will take some action regarding the match, which certainly provided one of the most disgraceful exhibitions seen on local fields for many a while. I am, etc.

A Sweet-Tempered Irishman.
Shanghai, Jan. 29.

Japanese Debate 21 Demands Pact

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 29.—China became the center of today's proceedings in the Upper House of the Diet when the leaders of the Opposition heckled the Foreign Minister regarding the reported action of the Chinese Parliament in nullifying the leases under the Treaty of 1915 (The 21 demands treaty).

Count Uchida, replying, said that the Japanese Government was convinced that the wise Government of the neighboring Republic would not nullify the Treaty, which "is absolutely unalterable." The Imperial Government was unable to express an opinion regarding the steps which might be taken or to presuppose a lack of good faith on the part of China.

TRAIN DITCHED

(Reuter's Service)

Colombo, Jan. 27.—There has been another railway disaster in Northern Ceylon.

A mail-train from Talaimarar ran off the rails today owing to a wash-away.

It is unofficially estimated that

SUNDAY WAS HIS DAY OF REST, BUT READ AND WEEP!

Sunday was Detective Inspector Cruikshank's day of rest.

At 11:20 a.m. after enjoying his morning and cranking up his motorcar and taking a little spin for a bit of fresh air he dropped in at 48 Kweichow Road and arrested one Yen Saung-ching charged with manufacturing bogus 20 cent pieces. Inspector Cruikshank seized a number of the bogus coins and a few odds and ends of equipment.

At 4:30 p.m. the Inspector had had such a delightful time that he passed up tea and dropped in at 1240 Tung Road and arrested Tchang Tung-kung, Tsong. It appears, needed some money and so decided to manufacture a little of his own for private circulation. Six dies, 6 batteries, 7 ladies and other money-making stuff was seized.

At 9:10 p.m. the Inspector, having partaken of a most enjoyable dinner, dropped in at 453 Yau Road and arrested four men for being in possession of arms. During the raid, Inspector Cruikshank seized one revolver, one pistol, one dagger, and 17 rounds of ammunition.

Police reports are not available but it is presumed the Inspector had a good night's rest.

Japanese Training Squadron Sails

The Japanese training squadron of three cruisers under the command of Vice-Admiral Tanaguchi, which has been on a cruise around the world, left Shanghai for Japan yesterday.

The training squadron left Japan last fall on its world cruise across the Pacific, through the Panama Canal, Europe and arrived in Shanghai from Hongkong. During their stay in port they have been lavishly entertained by the local Japanese community.

Peking, Jan. 28.—Mr. Peng Yun-yi, Minister of Education, tendered his resignation today, in view of the strenuous opposition of the Peking teachers and students to his appointment. In his memorandum, Mr. Peng declares that "my ignorance and unpopularity disqualify me for the important post."

The Presidents of the National Institute of Technology, the Peking Women Higher Normal School, the Peking Medical College and the Peking College of Fine Arts have resigned en bloc as a protest against Mr. Peng's appointment.

America And The European Economic Crisis

WITH the Allies hopelessly deadlocked over the question of reparations and over many other questions pertaining to after-war conditions and after-war methods, one is forced to the conclusion that America's active participation in a general readjustment of things is quite as necessary as was her participation in the war itself. Yet how is this to be made possible?

The truth is the situation when America entered the war was not more critical than it is now. America was considered the hope of the world then; America may well be considered the hope of the world now, for there is seemingly no probability that England and France can ever get together on any question having to do with Germany, and with the collapse of her money system and with her economic breakdown Germany is the menace of Europe and the danger spot of the world.

France insists that Germany is capable of paying an indemnity of thirty-five billions of dollars with interest and that she has got to pay it. England, herself heavily interested in this indemnity, insists that it is not possible for Germany to pay anything like so much, stripped of her resources as she is. England rests her conclusions on the opinions of her ablest economists and biggest bankers and biggest men of affairs.

What a nation can do, and what it cannot do in the matter of indemnity payments is wholly an economic question. The economists of England and France and Italy and Japan and South America ought to reach practically the same conclusion. What a nation can pay in indemnities is precisely the same kind of problem as that of any corporation or individual debtor. It is not a political problem but rather one that has to do with and is the essence of facts and figures.

The general opinion in England is that, with any hope of making good, Germany cannot undertake to pay more than ten billions of dollars. Many estimates are much lower. The difference between ten billions and the amount France insists Germany can pay is twenty-five billions of gold dollars, or to the Germans, one hundred billions of gold marks.

Considering the matter on its merits, and with access to the same facts and figures, it is not possible for the distinguished economists and bankers of England and France to differ so widely.

In this situation the outlook for Europe's return to sound economic conditions and economic health, except through the arbitration of America or some other disinterested nation, or through the arbitration of a combination of nations, is as black as night. Three years have been wasted on these after-war problems—three years of going from bad to worse, three years that have brought economic chaos to Europe and ruin to world trade.

America's stake in world peace, America's stake in a normal Europe, America's stake in world peace, is represented by:

Seventy-five thousand dead soldiers, more than two hundred and twenty thousand maimed and wounded soldiers, and an initial outlay of thirty-five billions of dollars, which will mount to a hundred billions before the last cent of war indebtedness and war expenses is paid.

Clearly American money cannot and will not go to the aid of Germany, which means to the aid of the Allies, until the measure of German reparations is so cut down and conditions of payment are so arranged that an American loan would be secure. This is the attitude of the American bankers, as voiced by Mr. Morgan, and is the attitude of the American public, whose money would go into the loan.

If the natural and logical solution of the problem is a new loan of American money to Europe, how can it be arranged? The French have seized the Ruhr Basin and apparently intend to keep it until Germany foots her bill or until they (the French) are dispossessed. With the best will in the world, America, it seems to us, can do nothing at the moment. She cannot pay Germany's bill and she cannot dispossess the French.

France, as we said the other day, has made her decision. The next decision rests elsewhere.

"Fury"

FURY. By Edmund Goulding, New York: Dodd, Mead and Company, G.175

Here is a sea novel, apparently a first book, that offers a considerable achievement and still more promise. Its title expresses the mood that rules most of its characters during its many moments of drama and some of them most of their lives. The two central characters are a ship captain, Dog Leyton, commander for thirty years of the Lady Spray—"still as trim a windjammer as you'd want to find"—and his son, Boy Leyton, second mate. But a cold fury of hate has filled the old man's heart for the boy almost all the younger's life, because some one, he has never known who, won his mother's love and she left husband and child to go with her lover. So Boy Leyton has grown up on the ship, schooled in the rough ways and by the rough methods of sailors on a sailing ship. He is as rough and as hard as they in all outer respects, but within him is a tender heart and a loving soul. And his father's cold fury boils with heat whenever these manifest themselves, as frequently they do, for they remind him of the boy's mother.

Boy Leyton has a sweetheart in the Limehouse region of London, where the ship docks, a girl of unknown origin who works as a slavey in a sailors' tavern and is known to sailors of many ships as "Min." But she is a girl of spirit and character and efficient ways who knows how to take care of herself. The rum and the gin and the vice of her surroundings have no affinity for her, and therefore she is recognized by every one as "a good girl." Morgan, first mate of the Lady Spray, has designs on Min that are not of the "spilling" sort to which she and Boy look forward, and the story tells how he tries to put through his designs when the ship comes in from a long voyage and is ordered to start again quickly for a port in Scotland, how Dog Leyton learns that his wife is in that port, how he plans to see her and make her tell him who took her away from him and then to find and tear the throat of that man, how Min, under Boy's directions, races by train to Scotland to meet him there, how Dog dies of a combination of fury and gin and makes Boy swear to carry out his purpose of revenge and to marry no woman until the man is dead, and what happens at the Scottish port when Boy meets Min, finds his mother, a poor, drunken down-and-out, and learns that Morgan, now the ship's captain, had been the one to start her on the downward way.

The author has a poetic imagination strongly touched with a whimsical or a mocking tone, and sandwiched into the narrative are many vividly beautiful bits about the sea that have a salt tang in their unique viewpoints and the originality of their phrasing. One of the novel's whimsies is a sailor called "Looney Luke," whose bits of verse about the sea, life, men and women are scattered through the book. While fury of sea and fury of men roar through the tale and uncurbed passions of hate and revenge, love, rum and baffled purpose drive the characters into smashing combats and tangled complications, the story is, after all and above all, a romance whose roseate, sunny colors and dancing gaiety deal with primal men and women, people "with the bark on," and therefore are matched and varied with lurid and sinister shadows. The author comes out strongly, too, strongly for artistic effect, on this romantic note at the end. He could have gained the romantic climax he desired without descending into a page of sentimentalism of excessively Dickensian flavor.

TAICHOW

In any locality claiming about 150,000 voters you expect to observe many public movements showing in which way public opinion is leading, but here the absence of any significant public enterprises during the past year compels one to conclude that the local citizens either are content to live in sluggish disregard of government affairs or else they are in a helpless condition despairing ever to make their voices heard in the presence of autocratic officials. There is no political movement being conducted by the leaders of any party in this district. Indeed, it seems to be a grave offense against time honored custom for any one to announce allegiance to any political party, as is done by every young citizen in other republican countries with such braggadocio. The officials seem to be advertising under the fine name of republican government, but still dispensing the same old commodity of despotic rule over the people, protecting only themselves and their friends and paying little attention to the people's desires for social reform along any lines.

There has been organized at Taichow the Society for training in Self-Government. It has been rather reorganised this year. A few hundred people attend the meetings of this society several times a year. Only a small beginning, but it is clearly the duty of every high minded citizen to get behind this excellent enterprise and to use it purely for democratic ends, to give the people their due share in every department of the city government and to secure for every qualified voter the unrestricted right to vote as he thinks best for the welfare of the community. On the contrary, we now have a monstrous sham on election day. Nine-tenths of the ballots are sold to rich gentry and county officials. Very few constructive plans of reform are ever heard of. Everywhere we hear of the people's opposition to bearing the proposed share of the seven million dollar debt for Kiangsu military expenses. They strongly favor the reduction of the army and abolition of the Tschunatse. The local merchants seem to feel very heavily the burden of the new police tax.

UP TO THE PEOPLE

Our delegates to the Provincial Assembly bought their seats at a high price but have done nothing to advance the interests of the people. One of the recent mayors in this city remained in office only a few months, yet he gained thirty thousands dollars by extortion from the people in lawsuits. There are no forward vision men among the gentry, indeed most of all of them are opium smokers. For all hope of improvement and progress we must look to the people alone. At present the popular mind seems well satisfied with the old brand of corrupt, despoiled rule, and we need above all an enlightened public opinion that will demand reality, honesty and justice in the work of the officials instead of the sham, corruption and partiality that now prevails.

By contrast with former conditions in the Ching Dynasty, the present educational outlook in our district is extremely bright and encouraging. Ten years ago there were no schools of the modern type in our whole district containing a population of more than a million. A few modern minded men have struggled against great competition from the old fashioned private schools and against the indifference of the masses. With great effort five higher primary schools for boys and five for girls have been established here in the last few years. There are about two hundred and fifty students in the two middle schools for boys. There is not a single middle school for girls to date. This need is felt keenly in the plans for school extension work among educators here, a great Middle School for girls, whose conservative parents will not send their daughters far from home. Great credit and praise should be given to our progressive and enterprising Superintendent of schools, Mr. Han, under whose wise supervision, the number of schools has increased rapidly and many improvements in the curricula and methods of teaching have been introduced. After a glance backward at the absence of all schools ten years ago we feel that a great step has been taken toward the realization of the best citizens' hopes, because at a rough estimate, there are about 3,600 students in our district. About twenty new public lower primary schools have been opened the past years. The thirty thousand dollars allowed by the local officials for education is but a drop in the bucket to meet all the expenses of the one hundred primary schools which must be fed from this money. Needless to say there is an unceasing cry for more money to pay school debts. A frantic effort is made to prolong the school term each year amidst the shortage of funds. There is a noticeable failure to erect up-to-date school buildings and to equip them with the most necessary apparatus for teaching. Many more free schools are needed for poor children affording them an opportunity partly to work their way through school. The qualifications of the teachers in the schools are rising every year and the enrollment of new students is going ahead by leaps and bounds. When the people awake to their obligation and make a real effort to support the schools, the schools will multiply to such an extent that educated people will be the controlling leaven in our society and many great evils will be corrected in our present system.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

The commercial and financial conditions compared to other sections of China in rural life are above the average. The narrow neck of land beginning at the mouth of the Yangtze River and bounded by the river for three hundred miles up on the one side and the China Sea on the other does not figure in the great political caldron of China. But it is a good thing to know that this whole section is valuable as a farming center and densely populated. The land is a combination of Yangtze River fertile soil and loam deposits and the reeding of the China Sea. A large portion of the land produces a fine wheat crop in the Spring and an excellent crop of rice in the Fall. Beans of every variety grow in between. The people, therefore, are well to do and generally have plenty to live on. It is near enough to Shanghai to command splendid prices for all farm products. There is an enormous business done in the raising of hogs, ducks and fishing. Last year a large section was flooded and there was famine in the lower land portions. But this year a bumper crop has been reported everywhere with the people happy and contented.

Mr. Chang Chien of Nanlungchow has reclaimed thousands of acres of land near the sea and has turned that section into a cotton raising industry. Thousands of toilers have been given work building the sea wall and to the cultivation of cotton. The foreign flour mill located near Taichow city has been running night and day most of the year. As the prices of farm products and especially rice advance, the dollar exchange seems to bulge in proportion. Taichow section has been a place of refuge for a thousand years to the well to do Chinese who have fled from provinces where war and other disturbances were going on. Wealthy men have come from far and located here. After wars and famines were over, many have gone back to their official places, often leaving their families behind.

Religiously Taichow has a great record. No less than one hundred and eighteen temples and eighty nunneries heighten the glimmer of the old town. The priests are famous throughout southern China and hold an enviable record for soothing the gods and bringing peace and prosperity to millions of the sons of Han. The temple festivals instituted at regular holidays present all the color and popularity of a kingly procession after the order of a thousand years ago. Gay with color and lantern parades, followed by the masses gathered from far and near and the regal splendor of one of Buddhas representatives, there is frequently spent on a single parade as much as twenty-five thousand dollars.

The people seem not to mind the expense so that year after year the worship of the gods seems to grow in popularity. It would be exceedingly interesting could the movie world secure a reel of one of these idol festivals and present it to the modern world. The Christian world has nothing to compare with this maze worship of the gods. Up to the present time, the Christian Gospel has been little known throughout this whole section. Until recent years there were no resident missionaries between the mouth of the Yangtze and the mouth of the Grand Canal. While many have heard of the One God elsewhere, there are but few Christians throughout these four counties. We recall that only a few years ago the Catholic Church was burnt to the ground, and only four or five years ago a riot was in full blast against the foreigners who came with the Gospel of Peace.

Today, however, one may travel anywhere with safety and the Christian religion is known to the masses as being a good doctrine. Since the masses are so religious in their worship of the gods, from a human standpoint, we may look forward to the coming years when the thousands will throw away their instruments of pleasing an innumerable countless host of gods and learn to praise and worship the one only living and true God.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

About Potential Knowledge

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
Eminent Astronomer and Authority
On Subjects Of Scientific Interest

What an interesting thing it is to measure the height of a distant mountain while sitting quietly on a porch, provided only with a lead pencil and a foot rule for instruments and a trifling knowledge of trigonometry for calculating purposes. How simple a thing may seem magical to those who don't know the trick! This morning I sat thus on a hotel porch and admired a distant, blue, magnificently shaped mountain. I asked a native of the region how high that mountain was. He didn't know, never had heard tell how high it was. How far away was it? He reckoned it might be between twenty and thirty miles, a railroad chart showed that the distance was about twenty miles in an air line.

"Now," said I to an interested companion, "we'll find out for ourselves how high that mountain is. It is certainly a bit of information worth the trouble of making a few figures."

"How are you going to do it when you've got no surveying instrument?"

"This pencil and foot rule will do the work well enough for our purpose. Observe that the pencil is one quarter of an inch thick. Now I hold it horizontally and move it away from my eye until it just hides the mountain from the horizon line to the summit. The intervening country being practically level helps us. When the pencil covers the mountain I find that it is fifteen inches from my eye. The distance of the mountain, as the chart shows, is twenty miles.

"Very well, then, we have this proportion: As 15 inches is to 1/4 inch, so is 20 miles to the height of the mountain, which we will call X. Solving the proportion we find that 60 X equals 20 miles, so that X must equal 20-60 or one-third of a mile—i.e., 1,760 feet, which is therefore the height of the mountain."

"We did not have formally to employ trigonometry at all. Simple arithmetic sufficed. We only had to know that the apparent height of an object varies inversely with the distance. A quarter of an inch at a distance of 15 inches has an angular altitude the same as that of a mountain 1,760 feet high but 84,480 times 15 inches distant. In each case the distance is 60 times the height, 60 x 1/4 inch being 15 inches, and 60 x 1,760 feet being 20 miles."

So many people never remember, or never apply, any of the elementary mathematics that they learned in school to anything in practical life except figuring grocers' and dressmakers' bills, the price of stocks and the cost of keeping up appearances. Without knowing it, they have in their possession, only waiting to be used, a key of power to open the gate of a world of intellectual pleasures.

The simple method above described may often be of the greatest practical value in furnishing information imperatively needed and not otherwise in the existing circumstances to be had. It furnishes much entertainment, too. It is as easy to calculate the distance as the magnitude of an object. The two are interconvertible. Knowing one you can ascertain the other. Often it is convenient to proceed by a trigonometrical method. Here the tangent of the angle subtended by the distant object is the key. It is a valuable little accomplishment to learn how to estimate angles.

A small protractor makes an excellent pocket-piece and ought to be almost as common as a jack knife and a pocket compass for those who go traveling through nature's expanses. Another invaluable companion is a small handbook for engineers, containing tables of logarithms and trigonometric functions. There is nothing formidable about these things except their names. They are as easy to learn as A B C, and are useful to every intelligent person. Every normal boy is a natural engineer. He is spoiled at school unless luck favors him.

Let us see what the tangent method would have done in our mountain case. First, the angular height of the mountain as seen from the porch should have been carefully estimated, or better, measured. In the case as given this would have been about one degree. The distance would represent the radius of the trigonometric circle, which is always reckoned as unity, or one, and the height of the mountain would be the tangent of the angle. Glancing at our pocketbook table of tangents we should find the decimal 0.01746 standing for the tangent of one degree. This means that the height bears to the distance (represented by the radius) the ratio of 0.01746 to 1.0. So, the distance being 20 miles, the height would be about 1,760 feet. This is 83 feet more than we got by the other method, but the difference arises from our having slightly overestimated the angle.

Finally slew the Emperor and himself seized the throne. It is the plot of Theophrastus and Timotheus which forms the basis of the story, but upon this foundation the author, who has written half a dozen or more historical romances dealing with antiquity or the Middle Ages, has built a complicated drama enacted by a large and varied company of characters amid splendid and colorful scenes. The author pays much and careful attention to the details of his setting, and so he enables the reader to visualize the widely varying and usually gorgeous scenes that form the background of his dramatic happenings.

The story opens on an auction in the slave bazaar attended by the rich and the great among both men and women, by dandified nobles, by eunuchs of harems and even by the Emperor himself. As the last beauty is put up and a form and fact of surpassing loveliness are revealed and shown to be informed by a lofty and uncowed spirit, it is soon evident that behind her presence at the slave auction lies some mysterious scheming, for several of the bidders recognise her as a recent lady-in-waiting of the empress and the daughter of a famous General, who has been disgraced by the Emperor's consort. When it looks as if the Emperor's agent will be outbid the Emperor himself comes forward and overtops the others, when suddenly an envoy of the Emperor appears and lays claim to the girl in the Emperor's name. And, in the midst of the flurry, a beggar leaps forward, seizes her and bears her away. Thus the reader is inducted in the very beginning of the tale into the very complications and sinuosities of its plot, for it is evident that the girl is a pawn in the conspiracy for the killing of the Emperor, that is already under way, that the Emperor has learned of its progress and is opposing his consort by means as wily and indirect as her own.

The reader follows the Emperor's in her scheming, is carried through all the colorful vicissitudes that befall the General's daughter so suddenly rescued from a bitter fate, takes part in the efforts of the Emperor to circumvent the conspirators. It is an intricate plot worked out with care and with every regard for the subtle scheming, Oriental characteristics of the people with whom the author deals. The thronging company is true to the times also in the wide variety of races and lands and nations that it gathers together, in a loose conglomerate of animosities, out of all the region "from the Nile to the Danube, from the Yellow Sea to the Pillars of Hercules."

The story proceeds in a leisurely way, with much conversation, much presentation of manners and customs, much picturing of details. Whether or not its picture of the times and the place is authentic, it is harmonious in its several phases, coherent, reasonably convincing and very colorful. The author has a certain instinct for story-telling and for dramatic scenes. As a historical romance his novel, although it moves slowly and carries much weight of scenery, is an interesting story. Its beautiful illustration in color and artistic decorations from pen and ink drawings by Eric Page deserve mention.

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tincture and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

THE LOTUS WOMAN. A romance of Byzantine Constantinople. By Nathan Galitzier. Illustrated and decorated by Eric Page. Boston: The Page Company, G.32.

The scene of this historical romance is Constantinople almost a thousand years ago, in the latter days of the reign of that Byzantine Emperor, Nicephorus, whose reign of many wars culminated in his capture of the sword of Mahomet. He is one of the principal characters in the story, in which important parts are taken also by his Empress, Theophrastus, and by her lover, Timotheus, who

The British Conservative Triumph

British innate aversion to Coalition Governments and eagerness to return to government by parties is the fundamental reason, according to many, for the triumph of the Conservatives in the recent elections, which give Premier Bonar Law an estimated majority of about eighty votes in the House of Commons. This is described by London press correspondents as "a good working majority" and renders the Conservatives completely independent of help from any other quarters. Former Premier Lloyd George is "temporarily in eclipse," we are told, but no predictions are made as to how long he will stay there. With such a good fighter having as his chief supporters Lord Birkenhead, Winston Churchill, and others of corresponding brilliance, the Conservatives will have at least one set of redoubtable opponents, according to the forecasts of Parliamentary correspondents. Although Mr. Churchill was defeated in his effort to be re-elected to Parliament, these correspondents say that it will not be long before he is re-elected there. But the fiercest opposition that Conservatives will have to meet, it appears, is that of the Labor party, whose remarkable gains in the elections stir all sections of the press. An analysis of the popular vote, we are told, shows the total cast for Labor candidates to be nearly four-fifths of the vote for Conservative candidates. Dividing the vote by the numbers of members elected, it appears that each Conservative M. P. represents, roughly, 16,000 voters, while each Labor M. P. represents 30,000. Scotland, Wales, and the northern border of England are said to have produced predominantly Labor returns. Says the Conservative London Daily Telegraph:

"The degree of success attained by Labor is one of the outstanding political lessons of this contest. It has prepared for the day of battle through four years of unrelenting hard work and vigorous propaganda. It has gained the ear of multitudes of voters for its fantastic and ruinous doctrines, and has reaped a political harvest which, although far below its hopes, represents a doubling of its Parliamentary strength. If its progress is to be checked and thrown back, as it must be if the future of the country is to be saved, it will have to be met by an equally determined campaign of political enlightenment and appeal on the part of those who look for the restoration of the balance of constitutional parties in our public life and the reduction of the revolutionary element to that negligible force which it naturally possesses in this country when there is no pressure of poverty, discouragement and discontent operating in its favor."

In some quarters it is predicted that with Labor as the second Parliamentary party the Conservatives will be forced into a much more reactionary position than Mr. Bonar Law would naturally have chosen, or than he would have adopted if Labor had been the third or fourth element of strength, and it is pointed out that:

"Labor's place as the official party of opposition, which sets it directly against the Conservatives and brings its leaders right under the noses of the government benches, as it were, is bound to result in a sharp clash between the extreme viewpoints of both parties. It is being predicted generally here that the present arrangement of Conservative and Radical parties in first and second places will endure."

Meanwhile there is general lament in the London Liberal press at the advent of a Conservative Government, because, as the Liberal newspapers say, such a victory might have been prevented had the Labor and Liberal parties agreed on a common election policy, instead of fighting each other.

In the Liberal view of Mr. A. G. Gardiner, a contributing editor to London John Bull, and an occasional London correspondent of the New York World, all credit for the overthrow of the Coalition falls "by a strange irony" to the Conservatives, who were its "main support," and who "only destroyed Lloyd George when he had ceased to serve their ends."

Meanwhile, the Liberal party almost ceases to be, although it has constantly opposed the Coalition, and Mr. Gardiner adds: "The result of the election leaves Lloyd George an outcast with a trivial band of personal supporters. He has smashed the Liberal party, has been rejected by the Tory party, and his future must be that of a free lance."

"No such sudden catastrophic fall ever was recorded in the history of British politics. For six years dictator of Europe, almost dictator of Europe, now he is discredited and broken, repudiated alike by the Tories, Liberals and Labor."

"The single monument of his Liberal party and the overwhelming rehabilitation of the Conservatives. The present feeling is that the election has sounded the death-knell of the hopes for the revival of the Liberal organization, and it is doubtful whether it ever will be constructed as a first-class fighting instrument. It has been crushed between the upper and nether millstones of Conservatism and Labor."

"Asquith passes into final eclipse along with the lieutenant who engineered his fall six years ago. In him passes a great Englishman, wise, disinterested, but lacking in initiative."

"Most significant is the growth of the Labor party. It now takes the place of the Liberals as the most powerful opposition to Conservative control. Its aim was to crush the Liberals and this was achieved last Wednesday. Not only are its numbers more than doubled but its personnel is enormously enhanced so that it will be, intellectually, the most formidable element of the new Parliament."

The London Daily Chronicle, known in Mr. Lloyd George's Premier days as his newspaper, remarks:

"Bonar Law's Government has obtained an ample working majority and we must look forward to being governed by members of his Ministry—mostly unashamed reactionaries—for the next five years. That prospect is bleak. It would be folly to disguise it. The country must expect to see a period of Tory violence provoking, as the pendulum swings, a period of revolutionary violence, and between the two the chance of making sane, democratic progress toward post-war recovery may to a great extent be withheld from the nation."

By way of contrast we have the verdict of the Unionist "die-hard" London Morning Post, which expresses its belief that Mr. Bonar Law's success "should prove the beginning of a new era in the fortunes of this distracted country." By its own wise choice, this daily avers, the nation now possesses "an honest and resolute government, capable of bringing order out of disorder, of restoring confidence, of building up prosperity, and of maintaining the luster of the name of a great nation." The anti-Lloyd George London Times assures us that "few tears will be shed for the Lloyd George candidates" because they "represented an anachronism" and it diagnoses as the healthiest feature of the election the fact that it sets the country free from the "personal element in politics." The results of the election as summarized by the London Daily Express are "an absolutely satisfactory Conservative victory, a demonstration of the strength which Labor commands, even under bad leadership, the failure of orthodox Liberalism to make any marked recovery, and the absolute ruin of Lloyd George's party and policy." Examining Labor's strength on the morrow of the elections an American correspondent at London writes:

"The intellectual wing of the Workers' party is represented in this Parliament as never before, but the same may be said for the Extremists, who have sent one avowed Communist to Westminster and who are expected to exert a powerful radical influence at a time when the more moderate leaders are seeking to pursue policies that will recommend to the nation the party's fitness to govern."

"Labor's remarkable gains continue to excite attention, and the party's record is seen to be all the more remarkable in the analysis of the popular vote, which shows the total cast for its candidates to be nearly four-fifths that for the Unionists. Scotland, Wales and the northern border of England appear predominantly radical on the face of the returns. The heavy Communist vote in Scotland is all the more surprising, as that country has always been regarded as a rock-ribbed center of social and political conservatism."

"Further analysis of the returns shows the Conservative party cast about one-third of the total vote of nearly 15,000,000. One approximate tabulation made here gives the parties the following popular vote:

"Conservatives, 5,821,346; Labor, 4,326,245; Asquith Liberals, 2,784,080; Georgian Liberals, 1,501,500; Ulster Unionists, 100,000; Independents, 259,000; Irish Nationalists, 12,614; and Farmers, 11,496."

"On the basis of those figures, dividing the vote by numbers of members elected, it is shown each Conservative M. P. represents, roughly, 16,000 voters, while each Labor M. P. represents 30,000. In the London area the Conservatives elected forty-one members with a total vote of 553,714, while Labor, with 332,905 votes, seated only nine."
